

CURRENT TRENDS IN THE PHENOMENON OF TERRORIST Study on Africa

Munteanu O.E. Cristian¹

¹MSC, Vicepresident, Bucharest, Romania

cristiancornelius@yahoo.com

Abstract

Being an obvious threat to global security, terrorism becomes translatable as a constant factor of instability, due to factors such as infrastructure developed in the first class of states, the influence of aggressive media and propaganda provided by Al Jazeera television station, national dailies in most Arab, African, but also those which have developed opinion formers who write well directed and unusual in all major world publications, propaganda control is ensured by a large number of religious structures, especially those of Islamic origin, but also structures minority, ethnic, nationalist or religious in Northern Ireland, Spain and Corsica.

Cold War, said after the Second World War ended December 25, 1991 when the USSR dissolved, resulting in the biggest geopolitical and economic mutations was materialized through the creation of terrorist organizations financed and supported by strength in conflict.

Specialized analysis and dynamic global political realities underscores that as interesting as it is disturbing. Relating to the dispute on the fringes of the planetary spheres of influence, unprecedented power that they have acquired terrorist organizations that have operated under their patronage

In this context, the study of current trends in the evolution of terrorism in Africa reliable indicator of the presence of specific characteristics that individualize African terrorism

Considering developments in international relations of the scene permanently.

Keywords: terrorism, spheres of power, general principles, legal regulations in the field